

Removing the "established business relationship" qualification is bad for business, forcing associations to obtain written consent of their own members, clients, and business partners before transmitting any fax that could be interpreted as commercial in nature.